If a user could body this out for Leopard and Snowfall Leopard after that Canon should possess also performed it.. INF file inside the SetupSG folder It will say that it isnt the correct driver and may not work.. Or Use, right click the file and select Extract to Open the folder it creates 'ide60vst641111a64en' Inside the folder you'll find SetupSG.. So in case you didn't see my Vista post i thought I'd post it in here also It uses the Canoscan LiDE 60 scanner 64bit driver: Files required:,... But its lying CanoScan Toolbox If you do not install this it won't work I use version 4.

Hi, I figured out how to get this scanner to work in Vista 64 about a year ago and have now got it working in Windows 7 x64.. exe, extract it the same way again and you will find the driver Go to your Device Manager (right click Computer - select Manage) Plug in the scanner so you can see it pop up in the Device Manager Right click it, Update / Install driver Select Browse my computer for driver then Let me pick from a list of drivers, just select 'All' then click OK Select Have Disk then Browse and select the CNQL60.. 9 which can be found If you get the ' Unable to select TWAIN source' error then try Install was the CanoScan Toolbox, it will ask you to reboot, do so and you're done Just thought id make this a bit clearer.. I'll furthermore be improving to Lion in the near potential future (since I qualify for the free update), but it won't end up being right aside as I'm nevertheless in the midst of moving stuff from the iMác to the MacBóok Professional and getting updated variations of software program, etc.
